Mordechai Torczyner grew up in New York City. Following two years at Yeshivat Kerem beYavneh in Israel, Rabbi Torczyner studied at Yeshiva University where he completed a BA in Computer Science. He has Smicha from Yeshiva University's Rabbi Elchanan Theological Seminary. While studying for his ordination, Rabbi Torczyner also completed a Masters in Computer Science at New York University's Courant Institute. He has been a member of the RCA since 1997. Efforts to spread Torah go beyond his immediate community. He maintains two websites which are designed to spread Torah to anyone interested in increasing their Jewish awareness. One site is called "WebShas," which provides a topical index to the Talmud (<http://www.aishdas.org/webshas>). The other site, called "HaMakor," provides bibliographic references to classic Judaic texts, on a range of popular topics (<http://www.aishdas.org/hamakor>).
